Was Express Co. Guard

VICTIM DYING IN HOSPITAL

Street Gang Mistook a Civil Engineer Who Was Going Hunting to Be in the Employ of the Company To-day.

New York, Nov. 1.—John Warner, a civil engineer, residing at Highwood, Conn., is dying in a hospital here as the result of an attack by rowdies who thought Warner was an express company guard to look after the company property during the strike which is now on. Warner was beaten and stabbed by his assailants. He was going hunting and was clad in a khaki uniform and carried a gun. He was attacked this morning just as he emerged from a restaurant.

It was decided to-day by the executive committee of the international teamsters to meet the representatives of 100,000 teamsters, chauffeurs and helpers of New York City to-night to decide whether to call a sympathetic strike with the express wagon helpers. This would tie up all freight, baggage and express business in New York. Meantime, the teamsters' officers are organizing the men in Boston, Philadelphia and elsewhere in contemplation of calling a national strike if necessary. The tie-up is effective in New York to-day, and hundreds of carloads of perishable goods are spoiling in the yards.

Three hundred strike breakers arrived from Baltimore to-day. A score of mounted policemen guarded them on the way to the Adams Express company's stables.

Stephen Jones Lost Life Trying to Save Children.

Lynn, Mass., Nov. 1.—To save three small children who had wandered onto the railroad tracks in front of an express train, Stephen Jones, a Boston and Maine carpenter, gave up his life yesterday. The children were crossing the tracks near the Chatham street grade when Jones spied them. Shouting, he ran toward the spot and succeeded in securing the children so that they ran out of danger, but in the excitement and anxiety the man failed to notice how close the train was, and the engine struck him. He was killed almost instantly.

Jones was 55 years of age, married and lived at Rialside, Beverly.

Oliver E. Burgess, clerk in Ordway Holmes & Co's store, brought in a buck Monday forenoon which weighed 150 pounds. There was no one with him and the stories are somewhat conflicting as to whether he shot it 27 or 37 times before he brought down the gallant game, but whether it be once or more, it is to say that he bagged his game, it being the first one reported to the warden.

Albert O. Barrows of Waterbury, who purchased the Albert S. Camp farm on the east hill a little over a year ago and has never moved onto it, has sold the same to Charles E. Hunt of Swanton for three thousand dollars which is perhaps three or four hundred dollars more than he paid for it, which is but further and substantial evidence of the advance in real estate in this section of the country. Mr. Hunt is a native of Chelsea and returns to his old home town after many years' absence to settle down on the farm on which he was born.

At the W. Henry Ager auction sale on the west hill last Thursday, the crowd was small owing to the extreme inclemency of the weather and as high prices were not realized as at some of the previous auctions. The farm was purchased by George B. Colby, who lives farther south on the west hill, the price being seven hundred and fifty dollars, which was a genuine bargain as it was generally thought, and frequently expressed, that the farm would sell from one thousand to twelve hundred dollars. Mr. Ager will move to Underhill, where he will likely purchase a small farm. Mr. Ager came to Chelsea from Underhill about fifteen years ago.

DEMURRAGE RULES ARE NOT EFFECTIVEAction Postponed On Notice From the Interstate Commerce Commission to Central Vermont Railroad.

The Central Vermont railway company received notice to-day from the interstate commerce commission to hold up the new rules governing demurrage charges which were to go into effect to-day, and the agent at the local station received notice that the rules had been postponed until December 1. An attempt is being made by the railroads to standardize these rules which cut the free time in which cars can be held from four days down to two days with an average credit system whereby a shipper gets credit for one-day on demurrage charges if he frees a car within 24 hours after it is set. The shipper throughout New England, largely through the Boston chamber of commerce, are fighting this proposed change, tooth and nail, and have appealed to the interstate commerce commission.

NEW CHURCH DEDICATED.

North Barre Methodist Edifice Now Open to the Public.

The new building of the North Barre Methodist Episcopal church, located on Berlin street, near the corner of Smith, was dedicated Sunday afternoon by Rev. F. W. Lewis, district superintendent of the St. Johnsbury district, and Rev. Frederic H. Wright, D. D., superintendent of Methodist missions for Italians in the United States. The church is a neat, frame structure, thirty-eight by forty-eight feet in dimensions. C. L. Hugbee was the contractor and builder, and he has done good work.

The church is intended especially for the Italian fellow-citizens who have no other church preference, but is also open to all classes who desire to attend. Mrs. Alice Curtis, a trained deaconess from Washington, D. C., will have charge of the Sunday school, sewing classes, mothers' meetings and other forms of church activity. It is hoped also that a kindergarten will soon be started. The Woman's Home Missionary society of the Vermont conference supports the work. Workers from all churches are cordially invited to assist, especially in the Sunday school, held at 3 o'clock.

In the dedication exercises Sunday afternoon, Dr. Wright gave a very interesting address on the debt of America to the Italians, emphasizing their excellent qualities and urging fair treatment by their American fellow-citizens. He was sure they would appreciate the work of this church when they realized the unselfish motives of the workers.

All citizens of Barre are cordially invited to visit and inspect the building, which is erected for the good of Barre and not for any sectarian advantage.

JUST SCUDDER OVER FIELD.

Second Failure to Fly by Prof. Bonette
at St. Johnsbury.

St. Johnsbury, Nov. 1.—The postponed aeroplane exhibition by Prof. Bonette failed to come off at the fairgrounds yesterday as advertised, and about a hundred people were disappointed again. Saturday's effort was a failure, owing, Prof. Bonette said, to his fear of the high winds, and he said the event would come off Monday.

For some unaccountable reason, the engine did not work yesterday and the free exhibition failed as a successful flight. The engine was started several times and the machine scudded across the field, but it did not rise from the ground. A great deal of interest was manifested in the new machine inasmuch as Prof. Bonette lives in the nearby town, Passumpsic, and has always been favorably known to the people of this vicinity. His efforts may yet be rewarded with success and if nerve and daring are at all essential, Prof. Bonette will deserve to make good.

23 NEW BILLS PRESENTED

Senate Received Six New Measures and Passed Four Others—Gov. Mead
Made Several Appointments
To-day.

The country is saved: the hedgehog bill has passed the House, but it did not pass until a motion that debate cease had put an end to the remarks of a few opponents of the bill, who died hard and seemed to be willing to spend all the morning talking about the matter.

The dog license bill, which was a special order for this morning in the House and which was expected to furnish lots of material, was on account of pressure of business, put over until to-morrow afternoon.

A total of 23 bills were introduced in the House, among the more important of which were bills relating to support of paupers, to bar from holding liquor licenses any person convicted of an offense under the liquor law within five years, regulating the practice of dentistry, to have all town officers elected by ballot and serve but one year, to have the governor designate one justice in each town where there is no municipal court as a trial justice, and providing that no member of the legislature shall be eligible for appointment to any executive or judicial appointment during his term.

Mr. Peck of Burlington introduced another employers' liability bill, and Mr. Howe of Bennington introduced a bill to regulate the so-called slave trade.

The morning's business in the Senate was confined to the introduction of six bills and the passage of four. The bills introduced were one by Senator Porter, permitting railroads to exchange mileage for only legitimate service or product that they may require; one by Senator Darling of Caledonia requiring town clerks to transmit vital statistics not previously returned to the secretary of state; one by Senator Clark of Rutland amending the laws regarding insane persons so that notice must be given to an insane person and an adjudication of the court must be had before the person can be committed, and one by Senator Edgerton, repealing the six-inch trout law and limiting the catch to 50.

The Senate passed the bill relating to the operation of railways, the bill amending Barre's charter so that assessments may be made by the city council for watering or oiling the streets, the bill providing an appropriation for the Collamer statue in Washington, and the bill making the father the guardian of a legitimate child, and in case of his death the mother.

BAND ELECTS OFFICERS

And Hears a Satisfactory Financial Report.

The third annual meeting of the Barre Citizens' band was held in the band room last evening with a large number of the members present. The report of the treasurer, S. N. Parker, showed that the band had had a prosperous year and that it had come out on top financially, though the balance in the treasury is small. The city appropriated $1,000 for concerts and last winter the band cleared from its fair the sum of $325.

Officers for another year were elected and the members were enthusiastic in formulating plans with a view to making next year even more successful than the preceding ones. The entertainment committee, elected last winter, was instructed to arrange for holding some kind of attractions this winter for the benefit of the band. Arthur J. Loranger was re-elected president of the band and Joseph Fratini was elected manager and treasurer to succeed S. N. Parker.

Mr. Parker, who was one of the leaders in starting the band two years ago this fall and who had since been an efficient manager, was re-elected, but for business reasons declined to serve.

The remaining officers were elected as follows: Vice president, Amos Calcutt; secretary, C. C. Carpenter; treasurer of city fund, Merle Clark; assistant director, W. E. Dufur; librarian, V. E. Dufur; property committee, M. Wood, M. S. Robinson and William Rossi. A committee composed of W. J. Gilbertson, J. G. Sim and Lyle Perry was elected to attend to the securing a first director for the band and instructed to procure, if possible, the services of George E. White of Montpelier, who has successfully directed the band during the past two years.
